Be on the alert for new books

A TOOL to help library users keep in touch with the latest offerings from their favourite authors has been added to the online catalogue system of Clarence Valley libraries.

Visitors to the Clarence Regional Library website www.crl.nsw.gov.au can go to the standing orders list to see if their favourite authors are there. If they are, visitors can be sure library staff will order their latest title.

Regional librarian, Kathryn Breward, said if people didn't want to keep checking the list they could set up an alert profile.

"That way you will receive an email when the title is available to reserve," she said.

To find out more, visit the readers' corner page at www.crl.nsw.gov.au/services/readers-corner or visit a Clarence Valley library where staff will help set up your alerts.

Release ends.
